Press Release

GTIE becomes VINCI Energies

GTIE, a division of the VINCI group specialised in information technology and energy, changed its name to VINCI Energies.

The change is part of a group-wide effort to build a strong corporate identity around the VINCI name. The new name will give VINCI Energies greater clarity and visibility and will help it extend its presence in Europe.

When he presented the new name, Xavier Huillard, CEO of the division since June 2002, said: "Energy, in the form of high- and low- voltage power, as well as power and information networks, is fundamental to all of our businesses. But energy is also a value that accurately defines the people who work for our company. We are made up of multiple creative energies, which are unleashed and encouraged by our corporate culture."

VINCI Energies, which is number one in France and a leader in Europe in information and energy technologies, expects to report 3 billion euros in net sales in 2002. VINCI Energies employs 27,000 people through a network of 800 businesses in over 20 countries.
